

8. The Battle of Agwisanseong

Last time, on Huntr/x Quest:

The girls ventured into the depths of the underworld itself, and at the gates of Agwi Hwasin's black fortress - Agwisanseong - they managed to defeat a small army of demonic forces and fight their way through the front door. Celine and Agwi Hwasin must be somewhere inside.

Now heroes, prepare yourselves for quest 8: The Battle of Agwisanseong.

You find yourselves on the other side of the massive iron gates, and the entryway is surprisingly empty. Where is everyone?

One way or another, you must confront Agwi Hwasin and save Celine.

X - The girls start here.

A - When one of the girls reach either of these points, say:

Suddenly you hear the thundering rush of footsteps. It was a trap!

At each (B) location (4 of them), spawn 3 goblins, 3 orcs, and 1 fimir, in that order, spawning each a square further away from the closest (A) location. These combined all count as a single encounter together and not wandering monsters. The secret doors where two of the (B) locations exist automatically open. The monsters now take their turn immediately as well as preceding as normal on Gwi-Ma's next turn.

B - These are locations where the monsters who laid the trap in (A) are spawned.

C - Heroes who explore the rooms where the ambushers came from will discover 100gp in each of the treasure chests.

D - When a hero tries to open this door, say: This sturdy iron door appears to be locked. No amount of pulling at or attacking it seems to budge it in the least. There is a large keyhole, but none of you can figure out how to pick it.

If the heroes defeated the Hand of Agwi Hwasin at (L), they have the key and can unlock the door, at which point the quest ends. Say:

You unlock and push at the massive iron door, and it slowly slides open revealing a long hallway of prison cells. Agwi Hwasin wasn't here, but hopefully he left Celine behind. Wherever he went.*

For your heroism, you gain 400gp worth of experience.*

E - When a hero tries to open this door, say: You reach for the door handle, when suddenly you hear a sound like a jet engine down the hall! You look and see the hallway appearing to light up with an enormous ball of fire!

Place two skull tiles on (F) to indicate where the fire is located. Every turn, they will move up one space until they hit the doors at (E). Any hero who enters or occupies its space at the start of their turn takes 3 body points of damage.

Subsequent attempts to open these doors result in the same fireball being generated.

F - This is where the fireball in (E) is generated when it triggers.

G - When a hero tries to open this door, say: This door is made of solid iron, but the hinges appear to be rusty. You might be able to break it down with an assisted body check!

If the hero succeeds in the check, the door is opened. If not, the door remains closed and that hero cannot attempt again until their next turn.

H - Ask each of the heroes to make an unassisted Mind check. If any succeeds, tell them: You observe that there's an unusual pattern on the ground in this room, where some of the floor tiles appear strangely loose. It reminds you of a chess board.

I - If the heroes walk up to any of these chests and open them, each will set off a fire trap that deals 1 damage to the opener and spawn a wandering monster demon directly behind them: that demon gets a free attack against the chest opener. Each chest contains 100gp.

J - When you open the door, you notice that the monsters don't seem interested in pursuing you. Ask each hero to make an unassisted mind check. If any succeeds, tell them that you see the crude trap they've laid out and reveal each of the pit traps in the room. The monsters will only attack once the heroes are either in the pit or have crossed it, and will not cross the pit willingly.

K - When the hero goes to open the door: You carefully reach out for the door, wondering what diabolical trap is laid for you next. But instead, the door slides open freely. You see before you the throne room of Agwi Hwasin, but the demon is nowhere to be found. Instead, a large and intimidating demon sits on the throne in his place, surrounded by underlings. The surface of his skin is swirling with blue energy. "Greetingsss, mortals." It hisses out between clenched teeth. "I am the right hand of Agwi Hwasin, and you did well to survive thus far. But you will go no further!"*

The Right hand has the following stats: Attack Dice: 2, Multi-attack (4) ("it scratches at you with impossibly fast claws!") Defense Dice: 2 Body Points: 7 Mind Points: 6 Type: Tactical Maneuver: Teleport Special: Damage Limit (2) ("The swirling blue energy surrounding him seems to limit the amount of damage he can take in a single blow!")

The Right hand gets to cast Ball of Flame immediately at whoever opened the door.

When they search the room, instead of pulling a treasure card say:

You check the corpse of the right hand for anything valuable. You find a heavy iron key. Did you see a door earlier that might fit this? You also find 300gp per hero stuffed under the seat cushions of the throne. With that done, you have found neither Celine nor Agwi Hwasin. Perhaps this key will lead to one of them, if you can find the door into which it fits.

The heroes must now backtrack to (D) to open the iron door and enter the dungeons.

Wandering Monster in this Quest is: Fimir
